Jim, I am in receipt of a copy of the email sent to you by Dan Smith. The accuracy of his claims, well, I only can speak to the district being locked out of the website--the password was changed, and he signed the website page. No member of the board was involved and not any members of the "expired" committee who had previously had access.

As to timing, when he approached me I had already arranged for a different web designer to do the work using the software the district had bought the year before. Whether the committee used that software-- I don't know, however, the district had already purchased it at the request of the "website" committee.

And, when he met with me he offered the website to me but he was looking for payment, or, as he asked, "Are you a 501 c(3) and could I receive some writeoff for my assistance?" I responded that we weren't a 501 c(3) and could not give him any writeoff.

The rest of the story is just that, his story, and it does not match the events of early 2009.

Enjoy your summer.
