Madam Chair;

Thank you for correcting some of the nagging and persistent errors in the TE "official" website. It is sad that it took my letter to prod you forward. You assumed ownership of this site in January 2009 and it has reflected poorly on you since that time since you purport to be savvy in the computer field.

I have another suggestion. Have your web-tech fix the compatibility issue so the site can be viewed properly on all browsers (Mozilla, Chrome, etc). This should be a simple fix. Don't post a compatibility issue note on the site....FIX IT. When I go to the GM or Ford site, I expect it to be pristine using any browser. Any of my 1st year students @ LCC could do it.

I will help if you ask.
